Newsroom 2005 benchmark study

Executive summary 2

Introduction (method, TV channels visited, participating broadcasters and vendors) 10

1. Editorial and business context 18

–1.1. Proliferation of news programms 19
–1.2. Accelerated pace of breaking news to air 20
–1.3. Importance of basic ratings (for premium channels) 22
–1.4. Syndication of crews and correspondents 30
–1.5. Four categories of news innovations 25
–1.6. News “on demand” 27
–1.7. Importance of news lisibility and graphics utilisation 29
- 1.8. Utilisation of live 31
- 1.9. Importance of rythm 32
- 1.10 New sources of images and news 33

2. Technical architecture 34

–2.1. Categories of architecture (inventory of references/category & supplier)
Who has what in terms of automation, NRCS, and news solution 34.
–2.2. Level of security 52
–2.3. Software architecture (browse or no browse) 54
–2.4. Video format 57
–2.5. LAN network 62
–2.6. 3 different strategies for integration 64
–2.7. The growing influence of mass-market B2C solutions 69
–2.8. The growing influence of standard packages 70
–2.9. Interoperability: standards and norms 72
–2.10. Decentralised vs. centralised installations in a multi-channel environment 78
–2.11. Corporate policy in large groups 79

3. Work organisation 82

–3.1. Journalist control and autonomy 84
–3.2. Multi-skilling for hot news 85
.3.2.1. Editing by journalists 86
.3.2.2. Shooting by journalists 93
.3.2.3. Journalists working for several media 94
.3.2.4. Editing by cameramen 95
.3.2.5. Multiskilling between newsroom and news gallery 96
.3.2.6. Two different strategies of multiskilling 97
–3.3. Specialisation for magazines 98
–3.4. Variable field crew staffing 99
–3.5. Reducing news gallery and studio personnel 101

4. Noteworthy functions and best practice 104

–4.1. 25 noteworthy functions in systems 104
–4.2. Media Asset Management 114

5. Jobs in transition 118

–5.1. New “value added” jobs 119
.5.1.1. “Videojournalists” 119
.5.1.2. Craft editors toward more value added tasks 121
.5.1.3. Infographist 122
.5.1.4. Journalist-archivist 123
.5.1.5. “News coordinator” 124
.5.1.6. News editor/ENG coordinator 125
.5.1.7. Super-users/ systems managers 126
–5.2. New “IT” jobs 129
.5.2.1. Server/ resources/media manager 129
.5.2.2. IT software designer/integration 130
.5.2.3. Systems maintenance (operator/engineer) 131
.5.2.4. Network administrator 132
–5.3. Jobs on the way out 133
–5.4. Career paths and job evolution 135
–5.5. Training 136

6. Profitability and business case for the server based newsroom 137

–6.1. Financial benefits 138
–6.2. Quality gains 141

7. Conclusions (key success factors, recommendations) 145